STOP AT NOTHING

CURIOUS LEADER CHECKLIST

This may be helpful for you to develop the mindset and leadership skill of curiosity. Identify a situation to use as an example and then complete the following.

1. Prepare open-ended, non-defensive questions. Develop a question or two that you could use to open the dialogue up with your employee or colleague.

2. Anticipate asking the questions above and then imagine how you would follow up with curiosity. Go through a few visualizations of how you could reply with an authentic and curious response.

3. Ask for suggestions. Prepare a few questions on how you will ask this individual for input, suggestions, and recommendations. Have a couple of questions ready, if needed.

4. Ask about your role. Think about how you would like to ask for input related to your role. What would be a good way to position that in this situation?